

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

A recording apparatus capable of recording images and positional information representing positions on a recording medium on the recording medium. Positional information is read by detecting an image recorded with a predetermined recording material or by using a device capable of reading the information. The positional information is recorded with a recording material capable of being detected by a device and an image other than the positional information is recorded with another recording material.